Fr. Walter Pax To Speak At Mid-Year Commencement

by Ed McGee

Twenty-seven students will receive degrees at commencement exercises Sunday, Feb. 1. This is only the second formal commencement ceremony to be held at St. Joseph's at mid-year. The day will begin with Solemn High Mass at 10:30. Fr. Leonard Kostka, the college chaplain, will celebrate Mass.

Dinner will be served immediately following Mass and then the degrees will be awarded. Fr. Walter Pax, C.P.P.S. will deliver the Baccalaureate address.

Fr. Pax Guest Speaker

Fr. Pax was Academic Dean at St. Joseph's college from 1948 to 1955. He received an M.A. in Philosophy in 1930 and a Ph.D. in Education in 1937, both from the Catholic university. From 1941 to 1945 he served as principal of St. Joseph Academy. After serving as Academic Dean here he was appointed chairman of the School of Education at DePaul. Currently Fr. Pax is Director of Education for the Society of the Most Precious Blood.

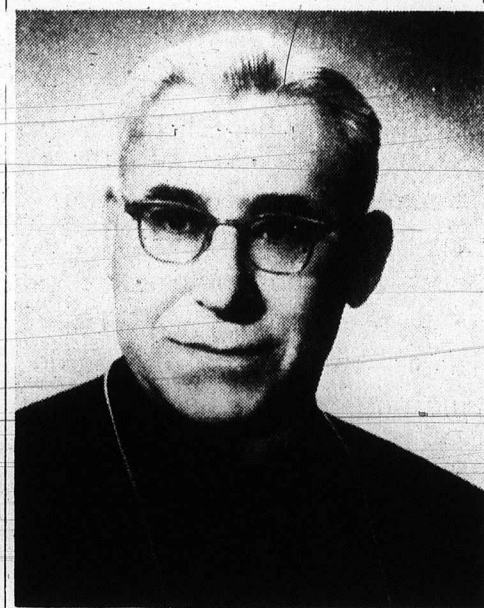

Following is the list of students and the degrees they will receive Feb. 1: Victor A. Bortolami, Chicago, Ill., B.A. in Geology; Jerome J. Bosch, Chicago, Ill., B.A. in English-Journalism; Mrs. Catherine L. Carroll, Brook, Ind., B.S. in Education; Richard G. Conlin, Gary, Ind., B.A. in History; Roy J. Day, Chicago, Ill., B.S. in Marketing; Thomas E. DeClercq, Royal Oak, Mich., B.A. in Philosophy.

Still others are: Edward B. Fech, Hammond, Ind., B.A. in Sociology; Thomas W. Geary, Chicago, Ill., B.S. in General Business; Ronald P. Giometti, East Chicago, Ind., B.S. in Marketing; John W. Hammer, Canal Fulton, O., B.S. in General Business; Daniel J. Heckman, Glandorf, O., B.A. in History; Thomas J. Huhn, Fort Wayne, Indiana, B.A. in Marketing.

James M. Huntine, Fort Wayne, Ind., B.A. in Marketing; Richard F. Koch, Mt. Prospect, Ill., B.S. in Mathematics-Physics; Edward M. Kolaczky, South Bend, Ind., B.A. in Mathematics-Physics; Frank A. Kopanda, East Chicago, Ind., B.A. in History; Don C. Kortepeter, Indianapolis, Ind., B.S. in General Business; Carl J. Kozluecar, Joliet, Ill., B.S. in Marketing will also receive degrees.

More Graduates

Also among the graduates are: William F. Kruse, Decatur, Ind., B.A. in Biology-Chemistry; Leonard F. Lovell, Kentland, Ind., B.S. in Marketing; Edward P. McDermott, Detroit, Mich., B.A. in Biology; Max McRoberts, Schneider,

Fr. Walter Pax

Ind., B.S. in Education; Robert J. Newett, Berwyn, Ill., B.S. in Mathematics; Raymond R. Ramirez, Springfield, Ill., B.S. in Physical Education.

Paul F. Schmidt, Culver, Ind., B.S. in Mathematics; George F. White, Brook, Ind., B.S. in Marketing; John R. Wolf, Logansport, Ind., B.S. in General Business, round out the list.

Extra Facts on Graduates

Listed below are some unique facts on some of the graduates. Richard Conlin is a major in the U. S. Army on leave of absence to further his education. Mrs. Catherine Carroll is the mother of two children. Mrs. Carroll attended Ball State from 1945 to 1947. Her degree will now enable her to teach. Edward Kolaczky is now attending the University of Chicago.

Edward Fech will continue with graduate study at Purdue where he received an assistantship. Some others who are going to continue their schooling are: Robert Newett, Paul Schmidt, Edward McDermott and William Kruse.

The Event: Mardi Gras -- Feb. 7 The Spot: New Orleans Via SJ

by Bob Rospenda

Entering through a wooded scene broken by winding paths and accommodating park benches, St. Joseph's Mardi Gras celebrators will find themselves in a mirthful atmosphere suitable to the pre-Lenten occasion.

To be held in Raleigh hall, the annual Mardi Gras dance this year will take place on Saturday night, February 7, following a varsity basketball game between St. Joseph's and DePauw. Starting time for the dance is listed as 9:00 p.m. Costumes are encouraged but not necessary.

Scenes of New Orleans

Back again, providing the music, will be talented Bobby Christian and his orchestra, who appeared earlier this year at St. Joe's first annual Tower dance. Christian is popular in and around the Chicago area and has played numerous clubs in the Windy City, including the Blue Note and the Chez Paree. Besides St. Joe, he has played for many other colleges and universities in the Midwest.

Raleigh hall will be literally converted into a typical New Orleans night club with the entrance and park scene on the south end. A picket, wrought iron, or barberry bush fence will separate the park from two rows of tables covered by red-checked table-cloths. Three paths of imitation brick paper will provide room for walking to and from the dance floor which will be located on the north end of the hall.

Bobby Christian

Bandstand on North End

Featured about four feet in front of the service counter will be a 20-foot progressive mural painted by senior Tom DeMint. It will contain the brick-laying scene from Poe's "Cask of Amontillado," a New Orleans balcony scene, and others which will fade into the Passion of Christ, denoting the coming season of Lent.

Behind the bandstand on the north wall will be an array of looped drapes studded by balloons and the words "Mardi Gras SJC 1959." In the northeast corner a screen will be used as a cut-off which will be decorated with balloons and streamers.

Plan Bigger Dance

Festive-designed paper will cover the post along the walls of the hall with three-foot masks adorning the upper portion. Lighting will be bright on the north end and will fade into a very dimly lit park scene on the south. Confetti, streamers, masks, and hats will be distributed to all attending with balloon bags possibly hanging from the ceiling.

Tim Sullivan and Norm Lozen, co-chairmen of the dance committee which is sponsoring Mardi Gras in cooperation with the Student Council, explained that the committee is making this year's dance much larger than last year's. This is being done, they stated, by hiring a larger band to play all evening and by putting up bigger and better decorations.

Tickets In Cafeteria

Besides playing several instruments himself, the versatile Bobby Christian has other members of his family in the act. His daughter, Vernyle, is featured as a vocalist with the group while his sons play in the band proper.

Tickets, which have been on sale the past three days for upperclassmen, will be available today, Jan. 22, to the freshmen in the cafeteria. Admission price is $5.00 per couple and tickets may be purchased by St. Joe students up until the time of the dance. Lodging for the students' dates will be handled in town, as usual.

Senior Ed McDermott: SJ 'Man of the Month'

by Ron Metter

St. Joseph's Man of the Month for January is one of the mid-year graduates, Ed McDermott. McDermott originally is from Cincinnati but now he makes his home in Detroit. During the short time "Mac" has been at St. Joe, he has made a name for himself by taking part in many college functions and organizations, which include membership in the Student Council, the varsity debating team and participation in intramural football and baseball.

McDermott is an alumnus of Catholic Central high school in Detroit. While at C. C., he was active in athletics, particularly football, baseball, and boxing. In boxing one year McDermott advanced as far as the finals of the C.Y.O. City Tournament. He also was a member of the Student Council. After high school McDermott entered the University of Michigan where he studied pre-med.

Elected to SC Office

In February of 1956 McDermott transferred to St. Joe's and carried on with his pre-med courses. After graduating he plans to go on to medical school to pursue his studies further.

Elected to the office of secretary of the Student Council last year, McDermott was known to his colleagues as the "fighting" secretary. He also held the office of vice-president of the College Debating Society, during which time he competed in inter-collegiate argumentation.

Recognized for Work Done

One of his most recent accomplishments was his winning of the annual college essay contest. McDermott's paper on the subject of "Radiation a Possible Cause of Leukemia" won the second prize of 50 dollars.

Other campus organizations in which McDermott has been active include the Biology club and the Motor City club. He was also a member of the Prom committee in his junior year. This particular committee had the task of coordinating all of the work connected with the prom weekend. The nominating committee, in selecting McDermott this month, wanted to give him recognition for all the work he has done since coming to St. Joe's.

Lectures To Resume Feb. 16

"The Theory of Evolution and Twentieth Century Man" will be the topic of a lecture to be given by Fr. Walter Ong, S.J. on Monday, Feb. 16 in Merlini Lounge at 8:00 p.m.

Fr. Ong, who is an associate professor of English at St. Louis university, will approach his subject as a "cultural historian rather than a biologist."

After receiving his Ph.D. from Harvard, Fr. Ong studied abroad and has done considerable work in the fields of American cultural history, medieval and Renaissance philosophy and is now doing work in poetics.

Among his other works, Fr. Ong has written two books, "Christian Humanism in Letters" and "Frontiers in American Catholicism."

Three more lectures are tentatively being arranged by Mr. James T. Farrell, assistant professor of English and director of the college lecture series.

Late News

The department of the humanities has announced its selection of the "Book of the Month" for February. Their selection is Aldous Huxley's "Brave New World" which deals with the regimentation of the scientific future and those who try to escape. The book will be available shortly in the college book store for 35 cents in the Bantam pocket series.

Catholic U. Players Enthrall St. Joe with 'Twelfth Night'

by Jim McCullough

On Monday, January 12, appropriately enough Shakespeare's Twelfth Night came to St. Joseph's campus. As presented by a semi-professional group from Catholic university, Players Incorporated, the delightful combination of high poetry and low comedy simply captivated the large and enthusiastic audience.

Several factors contributed to the success. One was a not-overdone arranging and cutting of the text. Another was the sparse set which enabled the scenes to flow rapidly one into the other much as originally conceived by Shakespeare. Most important was the acting.

The players spoke their lines beautifully throughout, and at times

Shakespeare's shrewd and conniving connivers, Uncle Toby and Maria, talk of love notes, yellow stockings, and crossed garters in "Twelfth Night."

St. Joe's 'Angry Young Men' Have Gripe - Will Moan

College students are funny people. They might be classified in three groups: crazy, wonderful, and not so wonderful.

Every campus is filled with these people and St. Joe is no exception. The three types of students are made up of many different personalities which have the task of adjusting to one another.

At Collegeville one type of student seems to be gaining followers every day. He is "Mr. Chronic Complainer." Most of us know him. He lives in a good number of the rooms on campus and can be found in almost every gathering of two or more men of Pumasville.

Mr. C.C.'s favorite phrase is what is commonly known as a gripe. To back up his gripes Mr. C.C. often can produce no sound basis.

Applying our good friend's phrase to his college life, one finds him complaining about practically everything all the time. Four of his main gripes about St. Joe are: first, "It's impossible for a guy to meet any interesting specimens of the opposite sex here;" second, "We have absolutely nothing to do around this dead place;" third, "I'm not learning anything from any of my profs;" and fourth, "This school is much too strict."

Let's take these complaints one by one and see if that's the way Mr. C.C. honestly feels way down in the depths of his heart. First, the girl problem. Have you ever noticed that our Dance committee has practically run itself ragged trying to accommodate our romantic needs with mixers, mixers, and more mixers? If we want social life bad enough and can't find it at these mixers, it's probably our own fault. Oh, so Mr. C.C. goes home every weekend to his steady girl. Then what more does he want?

As for weeknight dates, at coed schools they are often just as scarce as they are here. Guys at these schools have classes, too, and for these classes they have to prepare.

In answer to his second complaint, let's just make this comment. A good game of cards, a show, a night at the bowling alley, or a weekend off-campus at a friend's house are hard things to beat for an inexpensive use of spare time.

Third on the list is the professors. In comparison to other schools St. Joe ranks high in its educational standards in many departments and has been constantly trying to improve in all others. Sure, Mr. C.C. might have a prof he doesn't like, but this same situation exists at every school and will continue to exist as long as every man is different in character. Then there's still the argument that maybe the only one to blame is Mr. C.C. himself.

Now, we've come to the last complaint, strictness. Concerning this matter we'd like to ask our griping friend to pick up a handbook from any other private school and compare the rules. Truthfully, now, C.C., how much different are they?

We're all student here and we can all make things better for each and every one of us if we can just be truthful wit ourselves. Sure there are times when a strong complaint is valid and good, and it is at these times, and only these, that we have a right to voice this complaint. This right is basic in man's strive to improve himself.

How about a change of heart, Mr. C.C.? Getting rid of the Chronic Complainer means more prestige and respect for our school and a more enjoyable life for all of us. In this way the tremendous unity and spirit which shows up at football and basketball games can infiltrate even into the ever popular "bull sessions" in every room every day.

What Do You Think?

by Jim St. Amour

Of all the social events which took place this past semester, which did you find most entertaining and most beneficial to a student's college life?

Bill Ring, freshman, Marion, O.

By far the most entertaining and most beneficial event which took place this semester, I believe, was the play "Twelfth Night" put on by Players Inc. Prior to the play I was only slightly enthused about it. Afterwards, however, I was at a loss for words to express my surprise and delight over the production I had witnessed.

It changed my mind considerably concerning the value of the works of Shakespeare. Many others expressed the same opinion. Any production which arouses the interest in entertainment of that nature, as did "Twelfth Night," must be considered highly valuable.

Ray Elenteny, junior, Chicago, Ill.

I wasn't able to attend the performance of "Twelfth Night" but I did hear many favorable comments on it. Although these comments made me wish I had gone to see it, I wouldn't have changed my mind as to the social event, of this semester, which I thought was most entertaining and most beneficial to a student's college life.

I sincerely believe that the performance of "Amahl and the Night Visitors," presented by our own Glee club, benefitted the student most. Here the student, himself, was participating in the presentation of this event. By participating in it he is more apt to benefit than he is from just observing.

Robert Kunzler, freshman, LaCrosse, Ind.

In the past semester St. Joseph college has reached the epitome of social events with the Glee club's presentation of Menotti's Christmas Opera, "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

Tony Calderone, junior, Battle Creek, Mich.

I think that the presentation of "Twelfth Night" by the Players Inc. last Jan. 12 was one of the outstanding events of the year. The play was well received by everyone who attended and actually I think we got more than we bargained for in the way of laughs.

I missed Richard Dyer Bennet's performance earlier in the year but I am sure that I could include that under outstanding social events. Last, but not least, I would include the Tower Dance and the rather wet, according to all reports, Senior-Alumni Dance.

Henry Schmidt, sophomore, Cleveland, O.

To me, a social event which is to be beneficial to a student's college life should be an incorporation of some form of entertainment which is both relaxing and at the same time scholastic. Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," which was recently staged for us by the Players, Inc., seemed to be relaxing and certainly the very essence of the play was academic.

Ron Bados, junior, Hammond, Ind.

The first answer that came to my mind after reading this question was the performance of "Twelfth Night" which was presented here recently. Not one to let first decisions influence me, I decided to consider the other performances presented here. After careful consideration I still believe that the presentation of "Twelfth Night" was the most interesting and beneficial event that took place this semester.

John Ohde, sophomore, Chicago, Ill.

The outstanding social event of the past semester which was both entertaining and beneficial to me was the trip to Cincinnati for the game with Xavier. Not only was it an opportunity to watch an excellent football game, but an opportunity to visit a city which I had never seen before.

Bud Dowling, senior, Hammond, Ind.

As far as I am concerned "Twelfth Night" was the most beneficial social event this past semester. The play was most enjoyable and of course entertaining. It is a real shame that we at St. Joe's cannot have more such social events because the students as a body enjoy and frequent such performances.

Beginning with the next issue of STUFF on Feb. 19, 1959, all Letters to the Editor should be addressed to either Greg Mahoney, Box 128, or to Jerry Mauch, Box 150.

As usual, all letters must be signed by the writer or they will not be printed in the paper. The reason for this policy was outlined in an editorial by the Staff editor in an earlier edition this year.

All letters written to the editors of STUFF will be welcomed and will be published at the discretion of the staff. Students are encouraged to use this opportunity to express their opinion in printed form.

From Oven to Table

Paul Gates, college baker for the past 25 years, shown in his domain of dough.

Baker Paul Gates at Home On Puma Range 25 Years

by Tom Donahue

The next time that you sink your teeth into a piece of blueberry pie in the college dining hall, remember; that pie has 25 years of experience behind it.

All the pastry goods served in the school cafeteria, with the exception of crackers, are produced in the school bake shop by Mr. Paul Gates and his staff. Mr. Gates came to St. Joseph's as head baker in 1933 and has served in that capacity ever since. During this time he hasn't missed a day's work due to illness.

The college honored him with a silver anniversary banquet in the cafeteria on Thursday night, Dec. 18.

Remembers Old St. Joe

A resident of Rensselaer since 1910, and a Hoosier all his life, Mr. Gates is married and has three children and 10 grandchildren. Two of Mr. Gates' children live in Rensselaer and one lives in Winamac, Ind.

Besides being one of the oldest employees at the college, our baker is one of the few people on campus who has had the pleasure of watching our campus expand and develop into the beautiful place it is today. "When I came here in reached an apex of hilarity with every trick in the book—pregnant pauses, uproarious pratfalls, extravagant gestures, ludicrous costuming, rubber-faced mugging, flippant "asides." Both audience and actors seemed to sense each other's enjoyment of the delightful romp, and before the second act there was an almost tangible bond of affection between the two.

Even in an all-around excellent production there were some outstanding moments: Nicholas Bedesem as the drunken Sir Toby Belch, bellowing his lines while flat on his back . . . Mary Schager as Viola, sparkling in a most improbable masquerade as a boy . . . John Going as Malvolio, in the superbly funny letter scene . . . Scranton Mouton as Sir Andrew Aguecheek, fighting a duel with all the temerity of an ostrich . . . Dolores Viola as Olivia, astounded at Malvolio's rather indecorous proposition . . . Laurene Luckinbill as the clown, whooping at the woebegone Malvolio: "Some are born great, some achieve greatness, and some have greatness thrust upon 'em."

New Life to Old Play

If there was a flaw in the performance, it was the presentation of the songs as burlesques rather than melancholic changes of pace. This and an ill-tuned lute distracted attention from the beautiful rhetoric of a scene between Orsino (Robert Milli) and Viola. But these were very small lumps in a rich, saucy pudding. The awesome Shakespeare of the textbook was transformed into the vibrant Shakespeare of the theater, and the audience enjoyed the 350 year-old play as if it were written yesterday.

Our thanks to Players Incorporated for a rare treat. It will never be too soon to have them here again.

Baker Gates. . .

1933 the campus consisted of the Administration building, the Science hall, Gasper hall, the power house, and an old wooden building where Merline hall is now. Across the road there was an Indian school in what is now Drexel hall."

St. Joe's his Bakery

Since the enrollment now is five times greater than it was in 1933 the problem of turning out enough baked goods to meet the demand is greater also. This has been met by installing the most modern ovens and equipment necessary and by plain hard work on the part of Mr. Gates and his staff. "I recall," Mr. Gates said "that when we had the old ovens I would get to work at 4 a.m. to start the fires under them. First I would use wood to get the flames up, then I'd throw the coke on. It would take six hours to get the ovens to the temperature desired for baking. With the new electric ovens we are ready in a matter of minutes."

People have often asked why Mr. Gates has never opened a bakery of his own. "I feel as if I have a bakery of my own for the past 25 years. St. Joseph's has always had me operate the bakery as if it were my own and I have done just that. My relationship with the college has always been wonderful."

What does the future have in store for Mr. Gates? "God willing, I hope to continue my work here at St. Joseph's. I'm 53 now, in good health, and look forward to many more happy years here at the college."

Between The Lines

by Greg Mahoney

It is generally accepted that no one eats like a college student and equally conceded that no college student likes what he eats. Food, like the suspicion of Bolshevism in the classrooms and the life expectancy of football coaches, is a facet of college life that is always open for discussion.

According to unofficial research, the custom of feeding students dates back to the time of Christ when those who attacked Our Lord's lecture sessions on the Mount were given loaves of bread and assorted sea foods. The next milestone in the development of the college menu appeared in 18th century England when the Earl of Sandwich threw together the bread and meat combination that was later to bear his name, and the dieticians over at Oxford clapped their hands in glee.

The college cafeteria system came into its own during the Industrial Revolution with the invention of the can opener and the pickle tongs. The crowning achievement came in the early 1900's with the adoption of the pure food and drug laws.

A survey (other than Kinsey's) of a representative group of college freshmen a few years ago revealed that of all foods served them, liver was the most disliked. Also according to this report, the average college man doesn't care much for spinach, but he'll eat it any time in preference to broccoli or asparagus or starvation.

Outside of the cafeteria, the average student supposedly eats two candy bars a week, with the range being from none to as many as 28 bars weekly. The average consumption of carbonated beverages was three glasses a week; some drank none, while the most was 21 glasses a week. The report failed to mention whether there were any bars within a 50 mile radius.

Gripe as he may, the college student is allowed only two electives in regard to food: he can eat it or he can refuse it. Refusal in turn, can be subdivided into active refusal and passive refusal. The 500 U. of Illinois coeds who staged a one-meal hunger strike last month, spurning their Tuesday night meal of liver and onions, were examples of passive refusal. Active refusal employs good old collegiate riot techniques such as fork-flipping, mashed potatoes into orbit and greasing the walls with pads of butter. Actually, in the long run, neither form of resistance is entirely practical because the one results in drooping students and hungry minds and the other in dripping cafeteria ceilings and messy interior schemes.

Resistance apparently isn't too vigorous today, though, because the present generation of college students has been pronounced the fittest—if not the fattest—ever. They are in glorious health, true—but what price glory?

Among the local and guest dignitaries digging in at the annual St. Joe football banquet were (l. to r.) Fr. Shea, Fr. Baird, Mr. J. Dinehart, Coach Jauron, Assistant Coach Zimmerman, and Fr. Schaefer.

Collegeville Confidential

by Tim J. Sullivan Jr.

"Cold?" asked the student, as the balmy breeze skittered unranked leaves and old newspapers across the muddy path. "Naw," answered his companion, "It's only ten below, and there's only a thirty mile an hour wind. Why worry?" And they continued their treacherous way along the path.

They reached their residence hall, entered and removed their coats, sweaters, woolen shirts, and hooded sweatshirts. Attired now only in Long Johns, T-shirts, flannel shirts, heavy flannel trousers, and lumber-jack boots, they settled down for an evening of study, first checking the masking tape around the cracks in the windows, unearthing their illegal electric heater, and drinking a pint each of booze acquired from Rensselaer Red, the Friendly Bootlegger, just to assure warmth.

"What time is it?" asked Melvin Smurd, the first of our amiable warmth-seekers.

"Dunno!" said Leroy Loogan, his roommate, as he shook their electric clock violently. "Clock's froze up."

"Might's well go to bed," said Melvin. "Too damn cold to study!"

"Yea!" agreed Leroy.

And so, our heroes removed their boots, put on their pajamas, and crawled under their maximum allotment of 13 blankets apiece. They went to sleep, to dream of warmer climes and schools that provided heat.

Next door, two hardy souls were braving the cold just to have a bull-session. They were seated on the floor, wrapped in blankets, mainly because their furniture was piled in the middle of the room, blazing merrily away, providing a rather cheerful glow. The largest individual of the two, Shaun Czymancovich, raised his axe and chopped a large hunk off the wardrobe to add to the fire. His roommate, Abdul Shultz, shifted under his blanket, spat a stream of beetle-nut juice into the coals, and stated: "Ya know, I had a pretty good Christmas vacation. Yea! I think my parents only want me to come home so's I kin work. Yea! I walk inna door, see, and my ol' man hands me a hammer 'n' saw, 'n' sez, remodel the house, see, 'n' sumpin' about not gettin' 'a' car iffin I don't, see."

"Yea!", said Shaun, gleefully adding the bodies of two alligators found in front of the hall to the now roaring blaze.

"I mean, I don't usually mind, I mean, you know, I mean, yea, man!"

And with this, the windows broke inward, the door burst outward, and the Dean of Men looked up from his model airplanes clear across campus.

Shaun looked at Abdul. Abdul looked at Shaun. Shaun said quietly among the confusion: "All I did was throw that tank of hydrogen on that we hooked out of the chem. lab!"

Nightshirts

It has been rumored about campus that a certain group of students have acquired some of the old-fashioned type nightshirts, and are wearing them these warm nights: Laurie Honikel, and Chez Massura, to be more specific, Nightshirts?

Funny Sights and Sounds . . . Leon Dues getting a Roy Rogers Comb and Brush Set from his roommate, Mark Doorley, for Christmas . . . The students in Gallagher calling Bro. Larry up about the mouse in their radiator . . . Bro. 25 Gridsters Get Awards

Twenty-five Puma football players received athletic awards Wednesday night, Jan. 14, at the annual football banquet in the College cafeteria.

End Ray Regner, junior from Paramount, Calif., tackle Ken Bates, senior from Chicago, and center Tom Huhn, senior from Fort Wayne, also received special recognition for 1958 post-season honors.

Regner was selected as a Williamson Rating System All-American, Bates won an All-Indiana Collegiate conference berth for the third consecutive year and Huhn was chosen on the Catholic Little All-American squad by the Brooklyn Tablet and was given honorable mention on the Associated Press Little All-American team.

Featured speaker at the banquet was Joe Dinehart, assistant athletic director and assistant basketball coach at Purdue university. Dinehart was athletic director and head football, basketball and baseball coach at St. Joseph's from 1938 to 1943.

Those who have played on the varsity for three seasons received plaques. They were: end-tackle Hank Alesia, senior from Chicago; tackle Ken Bates, senior from Chicago; guard Dick Cote, senior from Manchester, N.H.; halfback Tom Deem, senior from Vincennes, Ind.; center Tom Huhn, senior from Ft. Wayne, Ind.; end Ed Labbe, senior from Dover, N.H.; fullback Mike Murphy, junior from Winchester, Mass.; tackle Ray Shuhet, senior from Hamilton, Ontario; and center Jim Tegtmeyer, senior from Pekin, Ill.

Those receiving letters were end Ray Regner, junior from Paramount, Calif., and halfback Chuck Spielman, senior from Canton, O.

Athletes awarded jackets included halfback Les Klein, junior from Lake Village, Ind., and tackle Roger Mueller, junior from St. Louis.

Those receiving sweaters—all sophomores—were tackle Mike Bartels (Milwaukee); end Dave Beran (Chicago); end Dick Blackmore (Chicago); guard Tom Buscarini (Chicago); halfback George Connelly (Chicago); guard Jim Dempsey (Chicago); fullback John Di Buono (LaGrange Park, Ill.); guard Vince Goeddeke (Detroit); end Jim Madden (Chicago); quarterback Mike McGovern (Bellwood, Ill.); tackle Vic Roos (Jasper, Ind.); and halfback Larry Wilmore (Evanston, Ill.).

In a special award, senior Tom Deem, halfback from Vincennes, Ind., received a memorial trophy given in honor of St. Joe's "greatest sports fan," Bro. Dave Schneider, who was killed in an auto accident in 1958. The award is sponsored by the Northern Ohio club and will be awarded annually to the football player who best demonstrates character, scholarship, and athletic ability.

On The Campus

Men and Issues

by Pat Lavery and Tom Page

(Due to the current resurgence of St. Joe basketball this year, this week's interview is with Coach Joe Iofredo.)

Question: Which type of team would you prefer to coach, a big slow team or a small fast team?

Answer: I would take the small fast team.

Question: Does this mean that you are not interested in any 7-foot basketball prospects?

Answer: No. I would like to have one, possibly two big men. One big man, even though, would fit into our own fast break style of offense. His job would be to clear the defensive backboards and get the ball out to the faster men.

Question: Would you explain how your fast break works?

Answer: We play a three lane fast break. Once the defensive board is cleared we get the ball to the man in the middle lane as quickly as possible. It is the job of the middle man to move the ball down court quickly and feed to the men in the outer lane. The middle man is very important in the fast break. He has to have the ability to get the ball to the man driving in at just the right time. Dan Rogovich, our middle man, has the excellent timing and coordination necessary for this position. The men in the outer lanes have to be fast. Williams and Holstein give us the necessary speed. Our philosophy is to take as many shots as possible as fast as possible. We don't want to give the opposition a chance to rest because we feel that we are in better condition than they are.

Question: If you find fault with a ballplayer do you criticize him on the spot or do you wait until you get him alone?

Answer: If the player goofs in practice, I sometimes will wait until later. During a game the criticism must come immediately so as to correct the fault before it hurts the whole team. However, I do not believe in embarrassing the ball player. I try to give only constructive criticism.

Question: Is much psychology used in coaching.

Answer: There is as much psychology in coaching as there is in life. Mentally the players have to be ready for the game a couple of days before. The coach has to make them believe they can win.

Question: What do you tell your team between halves of a game?

Answer: This time is used for making adjustments. We attempt to correct the mistakes made by the players in the first half of the game and the mistakes made by myself in planning the strategy of the game.

Question: Could you give us an example of the type of mistake a coach may make?

Answer: Against Indiana State and Chanute Field we switched our defense at half time. This had to be done because I miscalculated our opponent's offense, not because of any mistakes made by our players.

Question: Do you ever use this time for a firey pep talk?

Answer: No. It is no time for a rah-rah speech. By half time on the night of the game it is too late to worry about the mental attitude of the players. As I said before this has to be taken care of a few days before the game.

Question: Who do you feel is the best player and team that you have faced this year?

Answer: Leo Bird of Marshall college is probably the best player we have faced this year, although Schroer of Valpo is a tremendous player. For the best team that we have faced, I would choose Valpo. Our game against Valpo was one of the best played games I have ever seen. Among the teams that we play in the future I feel that Evansville and Butler will provide the strongest opposition.

Question: Do you feel that the spirit of the student body has effect on the players?

Answer: Definitely. I feel that playing on our home floor is worth 10 to 15 points a game for us. The St. Joe student body has wonderful spirit. This has been an important factor in our success this year.

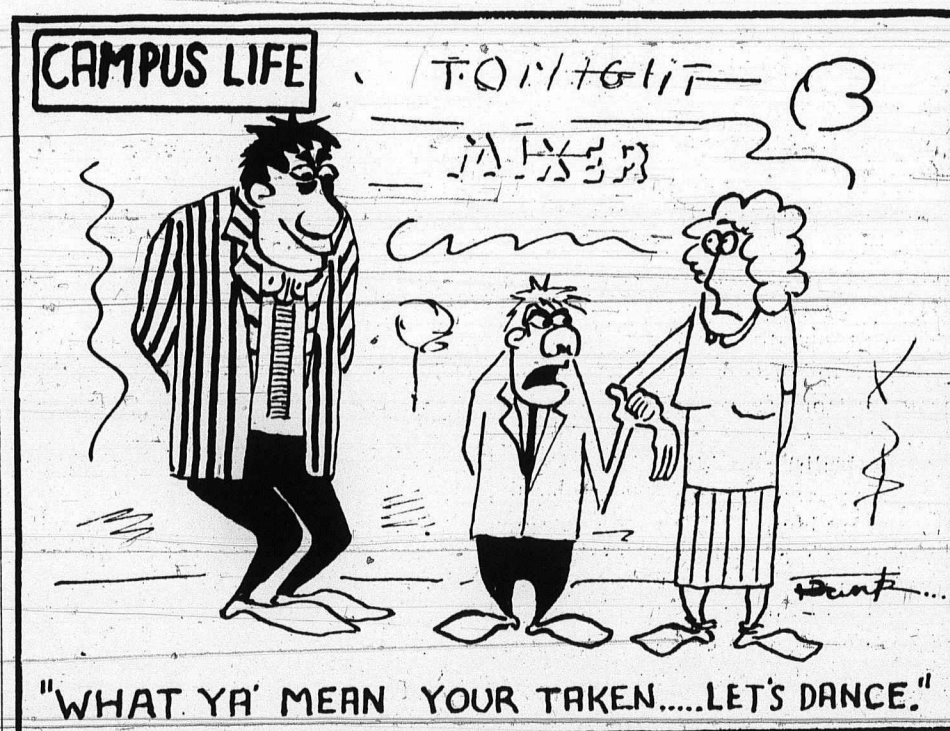

Question: How do things look for next year?

Answer: Very good. We have the whole team returning plus some promising players from the freshman team.

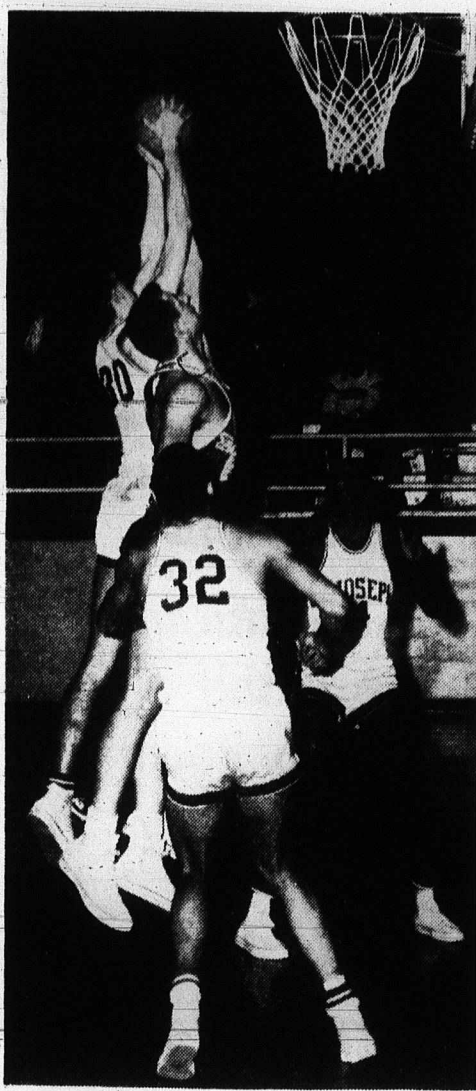

Question: Will the schedule be changed for next year?

Answer: Yes. We feel we have a strong team and would like to prove it by playing big name teams. Although I can't reveal the names of the colleges we will play next year, our non-conference opponents will be stronger than the ones faced this year.

Varsity Views

by Tom Donahue

At the time of this writing our Pumas are four and one in the ICC. Coach Iofredo feels that a 10-2 or a 9-3 record will take the championship.

The hottest team in the conference at this time is Butler. They whipped Dartmouth on Dec. 18, to begin a long winning streak that hasn't been ended to date. They hold wins over Indiana and Notre Dame in the Hoosier Classic and have defeated Wisconsin, Navy, Evansville, and DePauw in their current streak. Who said this conference is soft?

The starting line-up that Ball State sent against our Pumas last Saturday evening went something like this: Forwards—6'5" and 6'3"; Center 6'6"; Guards—6'0" and 6'1". That's a height line-up to be envied at any school.

There has been talk on campus about the tough schedule that we face at the end of the season. It could very well decide the conference championship. Coach Iofredo feels that it is to our advantage. "Our current eight and two record (at the time of interview) has been compiled mostly on the road. It's true that we face Evansville twice and Butler once at the end of the season but don't forget that two of those games are at home. Our last 7 out of 11 are played on our court. You're playing good ball when you win more than you lose on the road. (The 8-2 record backs this up) What our kids have to get used to now is playing at home."

The game against Northern Michigan at home this Thursday looms as a big one. N. Mich. compiled a 15-3 record last season and went to the finals in the NAIA championship. To date they have recorded an 8-2 record.

SJ Centurians Beat Cards, Tigers; Lose to Sycamores

St. Joseph's basketball team ran up the highest score ever recorded by a Puma five in intercollegiate competition Saturday night when it walloped Ball State, 101-85.

Guard Danny Rogovich, 5-7 sparkplug who was benched for the first quarter of the game against Marian, returned to captain the team with a vengeance as he played one of his greatest games in his three-year career. He hit from everywhere to pace the squad with 29 points on 13 buckets in 26 attempts and three out of five free throws; he led, as the middle man, almost every fast break; he was directly responsible for 18 points, besides his own 29, with nine assists; and he ball-hawked all over the court like a man who had brought the basketball from home and didn't want Ball State to play with it.

Hanley Hits Century Mark

The Cardinals kept pace for the first seven minutes; but, with 12:31 remaining in the half, the Pumas took a 15-13 lead and were never again caught. They turned on the steam full blast and built the margin to a 50-37 by halftime while the St. Joe crowd went wild.

From then on the Pumas never let up. They maintained at least an 11-point lead for the rest of the game, building it to 22 (95-73) with two minutes to go. It was just about this point that Iofredo emptied his bench and guard Al Hanley personally accounted for the last five points, hitting the 100 mark on a lay-up with 25 seconds remaining and then adding a free-throw.

Finnegan Grabs 28 Rebounds
Guard Bobby Williams followed

Rogovich in scoring with 20 points, while center Jack Finnegan netted 17, Ron Holstein 14, Jim Koehler 9, Al Whitlow 7, and Hanley 5. The smaller Pumas came off with a 73-61 edge in the rebounds. Finnegan grabbed a tremendous 28 off the boards for the pumas.

Indiana State thumped St. Joseph's college 75-65 in the Pumas first league defeat in three starts on Tuesday night, Jan. 13. The victory was sweet revenge for State who had dropped an earlier encounter to the Pumas, 83-75.

SJ Weak on Rebounds

The tall and rangy State men showed their superiority on the boards in the second half by grabbing off 31 rebounds to a meager 19 for the Pumas. This was enough for Indiana to retain their half-time lead of 40-37, and thrust off the come-back attempts of the Pumas.

Pumas To Face N. Michigan, Wabash, 5 Conference Foes

by Jim Quinn

St. Joseph's fast breaking Pumas, sporting a 9-9 record, take on tall Northern Michigan college, Thursday, Jan. 22, in what should be quite a ball game in the Puma fieldhouse.

Northern Michigan, coached by Stan Albeck, will bring an 8-2 record into the game including the last six wins in succession.

The team from Marquette, Mich. boasts a front line averaging nearly 6'6". Frank Hamilla, 6'2" guard is the leading scorer with a 14.1 average. Six seven forward Dale Kaiser is right behind Hamilla with a 13.9 average followed by 6'7" center Bob Pearce who is averaging 12 points a game.

Reach NAIA Playoffs

Northern Michigan, an independent team and member of the NAIA, opened their season with a 44-30 win over Chicago U. In three games in Minnesota, they defeated Winona State, 103-73, lost to St. Mary's college in a double overtime 93-85 and St. Cloud 59-56 for their only two losses.

After St. Cloud, they started a six game winning streak which included wins over Hillsdale (88-70), Alma (87-62), St. Norbert's (73-59), Oshkosh State (72-51), Michigan Tech (65-57) and Detroit Tech (62-56).

Last season, Northern Michigan advanced to the first round of the NAIA playoffs at Kansas City where they lost to Tennessee State.

Wabash Next for Pumas

One week after Northern leaves the scene, the Little Giants of Wabash invade the Puma premises with a 6-4 record which includes a 97-85 overtime loss to St. Joe.

Coach Bob Brock's Little Giants are led by Tom Bennet who is averaging around 16 points a game. Chuck Bowerman and Bob Wedgeworth are hitting at a 12 point a game clip.

Wabash holds a 56-55 decision over highly touted Butler, current ICC leader.

Butler Loses 4 Starters

The Pumas travel to Indianapolis, Saturday, Jan. 31, in an effort to catch ICC leading Butler which boasts wins over Indiana U., Navy, Notre Dame and Evansville.

The Bulldogs got off to a rough start losing five in a row before defeating Dartmouth 79-74 in overtime. A 78-75 squeeze past Evansville knocked the Aces from the top ICC spot.

Coach Tony Hinkle lost four great shooters off last year's team: Bobby Plump, Keith Greve, Ted Guzek and Wally Cox.

DePauw Winless in ICC

Evansville's Aces will provide the opposition for the Puma cagers Thursday, Feb. 5, in the St. Joe fieldhouse.

Last year's ICC champions are currently tied with the Pumas for second place in the ICC and have been ranked in the top three nationally, for small colleges, all season.

The win-hungry Tigers of De-

Pauw follow the Aces into Puma-ville, Saturday, Feb. 7. The Tigers have a record of 2-10. The Joemen whipped them on the Tiger court 72-63, Jan. 6.

Butler Here Feb. 10

The Tigers of Coach Elmer McCall lack a consistent offense. Senior guard Carl Meditch is the only man hitting a two figure average. His average is just over 12 points a game.

Before journeying to Ball State, Saturday, Feb. 14, the Pumas will play host to Butler, Thursday, Feb. 10.

The Pumas ripped Ball State 101-85 last Saturday night before a packed house in Collegeville which saw "Rogie" twist and squirm for 29 points.

Valpo Here Feb. 17

The Cardinals are now sixth in the conference with a 1-3 record.

On Feb. 17th, our ol' friends from just north of Collegeville come to town. The Crusaders of Valparaiso suffered a 100-91 pasting from the Pumas early in the season on the Valpo floor.

Sports Flash

Tom Huhn, 225 pound senior center for the St. Joseph Pumas, has been selected by the Chicago Bears in the annual National League Player draft of college seniors. Huhn was picked in the twenty-fifth draft round.

Club News

The Commerce club soon will hear a talk by a recent graduate of St. Joseph's.

Mr. Gerald Gladu, who lives and works in Kankakee, Ill., spoke to the club on sales in the radio corporations with respect to graduating students.

A letter was also sent to House Minority Leader Charles Halleck congratulating him on his new position in Congress. Halleck is an honorary member of the club.

The Lake County club will present its semester-break dance on Sunday, Feb. 1, with dancing to "the romantic style of Russ Carlyle" and his orchestra.

The dance, "stag or drag," will be held at the Surf Room, Sts. Peter and Paul church, 5861 Harrison St. in Gary. The ABC Paramount recording artists, featuring Dorothy Ferguson, vocalist, Michael Caranda at the piano, and the Coachmen will play from 8:30 to 12:30. Tickets will be available at the door.

The Geology club will hold a raffle on a complete Bell and Howell movie outfit consisting of an 8mm camera and carrying case, projector, light bar and two 400 watt bulbs. The tickets will be twenty-five cents apiece or 5 for a dollar.

Non-ICC

Leading only 41-37 at the rest period, the Pumas staged a fast-breaking rally that set them ahead 60-43 with just 11 minutes left on the clock. The tiring Rockets from Chanute Field couldn't muster the stamina needed to keep pace with the quick-moving Pumas and the gap gradually widened.

Williams Nets 19

It was an entirely different story in the first half. St. Joseph's, playing hot and cold basketball, shot off to an early 7-2 lead but the Rockets flew back taking their only lead 26-16, only to falter again at the close of the half.

Chanute's Gordon Slade took scoring honors with 22 points. Puma, Bob Williams, bucketed 19, while substitute guard Jim Koehler and Dan Rogovich helped the cause with 16 apiece. Coach Iofredo emptied his entire bench in the 100 minus one Puma triumph.

They can be obtained from any geology student and the raffle will be held in the cafeteria on Feb. 26, 1959.

It was also decided at the last meeting that the main theme of the geology display for Science Day will be "Water" with a side highlight on geographic field methods.

There will be a movie for anyone who is interested shown on Feb. 12 after the regular meeting. The movie, "The Fossil Story," describes the science of deciphering age-old clues to find tomorrow's energy.

Phase Elects New Editors For '58-'59

Selection of editors for the 1958-59 edition of Phase, the college yearbook, is nearly complete as the already-appointed staff members complete their first semester of work. Mr. Louis C. Gatto, assistant professor of English, is serving as moderator.

Ken Bogner, junior from Hammond, Ind., is serving as editor-in-chief of the annual. Bogner served in an editorial position on last year's book. Assisting Bogner is Joe Lambke, also a member of the 1957-58 staff.

Other members of the staff are Jim Lambke, social editor; Dick Meister, club and organization editor; Joe Lillich, sports editor; Ray Krizmanic, business manager; Joe Watson, copy editor; and Tony Tumbarello, photographer.

Two positions which still remain open are academic editor and religious editor. Any interested persons, with or without yearbook experience, are asked to contact any of the staff members or to come to the next meeting as announced in the daily bulletin.

ICC Games

The lack of rebound strength showed in the Pumas field goal attempts as they flung only 68 shots at the basket, with 27 of them popping in for a 39 per cent.

Puma scoring was distributed evenly as guards, Dan Rogovich and Bobby Williams were high with 13 apiece, substitute Jim Koehler 12, while Al Whitlow, Ron Holstein, and Jack Finnegan all had 9 points.

St. Joseph's Pumas came from behind in the last 10 minutes to whip DePauw, 73-63, for their third straight Indiana Collegiate conference win on Tuesday night, Jan. 6. The victory was played on the Greencastle court after an almost three-week holiday lay-off.

Pumas Turn on Steam

Jumping of to a 14-6 lead, the Pumas were then slowed down by 11 straight violations. As a result, the Tigers caught their visitors at 33-33 at halftime and took a 53-47 lead with ten minutes remaining.

At this point the Pumas turned on the steam and passed the Tigers, building their margin to 66-59 with four minutes to go, too much for DePauw to overcome.

Rogovich Bags 21

St. Joseph's, as usual the smaller team, excelled under the boards, grabbed 78 rebounds to DePauw's 52. Finnegan grabbed 23, Whitlow took 19, Holstein 15, Rogovich had 12, Williams took 10 and Al Adzia grabbed four.

Guard Danny Rogovich grabbed 21 points to pace the attack for the Pumas. Williams, who played only some 21 minutes of the full 40 and fouled out with three minutes to go, hit for 16. Al Whitlow followed with 15, Jack Finnegan with 11 and Holstein with nine to round out the scoring.
